PROFILE

The statement “Go big or go home” would form a great title for my autobiography as my life and career have been a testament to my willingness to break records and be a model of success. Through creative thinking and dedication to work, I've been able to reach any goal that has been set before me.

The most foundational aspect to my growth and establishment in my chosen field is my curiosity to always learn and acquire new skills. My colleagues describe me as someone passionate about all he does, bringing the much-needed energy to the implementation process and striving to be the most effective member of any team I find myself in.

My comfort zone is found in the splendidly complicated field of front-end web development, data analysis and all-round programming

JOB ACCOMPLISHMENTS

- With the help of a very competent team, I undertook the building and design of infomatics.com.ng – a premier provider of information technology services with a reputation for quality, superior technical skills and proven bottom-line results.
